Human Values Education and role of Soft Skills in Education

A seminar on “Human Values Education and Role of Soft Skills in Education” was organized on 05-06 Sep 2016. The objective of this seminar was to create right understanding of human values and soft skills to actualize these in their personality and behaviour of faculty and students leading to peace and harmony for sustainable success in career and happiness. Education in Human Values (EHV) and soft skills at all levels of the educational system is required to develop human resource for meeting the quality manpower need of the country. Education are considered an integrated and hierarchal system for the development of Human Values and Soft Skills in students. Thus, Human Values and Soft Skills development is to be considered as part of curriculum from the lowest level of school to highest level of education. In order enable manpower to achieve success in profession and happiness in life, they need to possess universal human values and Soft Skills essential for fulfilling need of keeping harmony within self, family, job, society and world.

Truth, Righteous Conduct, Love, Inner peace and Non Violence are five fundamental values, which are universal human values and are considered as the foundation of curriculum of educational programmes. These are corresponding to five domains of the personality: intellectual, physical, emotional, psychological and spiritual. They are also correspondingly correlated with the five major objectives of education via knowledge, skill, balance, vision and identity. It would enable individual to achieve success in profession and happiness in life. The program was very much interactive and loaded with fully learning concepts.
